3. Background

- 3.1 Diagnostics are an integral part of the health care system and provide information about prevention, screening, detection, diagnosis, treatment and management. Limited availability and access to quality radiology services are among the major challenges, contributing to delayed or inappropriate responses to disease control and patient management. This also results in continued reliance on empirical patient care or irrational diagnostic prescription practices that waste scarce resources.
- 3.2 Out of pocket expenditures on diagnostic tests are high and rising, sometimes even overtaking the costs of medicines. The poor patients, who access public health care facilities have access to limited set of diagnostic services. Other challenges in provision of a set of diagnostics at each facility level include availability of skilled personnel, consumables and reagents.
- 3.3 The ready availability of affordable diagnostic tools enables accurate detection of health risks and disease at an early stage, thereby improving disease management, and also diminishing subsequent health problems and associated costs.
- 3.4 Diagnostics therefore play a useful role in influencing the quality of patient care, and health outcomes. Good quality diagnostic tests that are essential and provide accurate results are therefore of paramount importance in reducing the burden of disease.
- 3.5 A package of essential diagnostics, if available free of cost, in public health facilities would not only reduce the burden on the poor and the vulnerable but would also be accessible to sections of the middle class society, who face financial stress on account of expensive health care diagnostics. This would also make the health care in public health facilities comprehensive and thereby attract a larger segment of population to avail the services.
- 3.6 Several states have attempted to ensure the availability of diagnostics in the public health facilities. These range from improving access to diagnostics within public health facilities, through hiring technicians and procuring equipments and reagents as part of regular supplies, or by outsourcing the operation of diagnostics, or by establishing linkages with the private sector for providing selected diagnostics, such as radiology.
- 3.7 To fulfill all the gaps and solve the issue, Department of Health Family Welfare, CG Govt. is inviting a proposal to provide CT scan Services, at selected unit.
- 3.8 Thus overall Objective of this initiative is, to ensure the availability of radiology diagnostics, and to reduce high out of pocket expenditure, thereby enabling appropriate treatment based on accurate diagnosis, thus improving, overall quality of healthcare and patient's experience in public health facilities.
